~~27~~ the girls. Liba & Mntkonkoni think that this custom will not again be revived in Swaziland. Mbändeni tried to start it, but Malunge, Mjokovu's father, Ndabambi and Neabenji opposed its revival on the grounds that people who were circumcised did not escape death. They thought people should be left alone. Mbändeni then went no further into the matter. Girls used to prefer those who had been circumcised. Swazi women have never ~~saka'd~~ like Basutos. Women have said nothing in complaint about discontinuance of the custom. 26.11.98.

Swaziland (per Tukuba. 27.11.98) Mbändeni did try and revive the custom but Malunge, Mjokovu's father, protested saying that no advantage was gained for ~~saka'd~~ people died just as much as unsaka'd. It was this protest of Malunge which foiled the attempt to re-introduce it. ^{The practice} 27.11.98.

tract of country, sanctioned the formation of a settlement by this small band of white men, which, however, was broken up about four years later.

Towards the close of 1837 a large body of Dutch Boers from the Cape Colony, taking offence at restrictions placed on them by the British Government in regard to their coloured servants, migrated to Natal. Many of them were treacherously murdered by Dingaan, then Zulu chief, the murderer of, and successor to, his brother Chaka. For two years the Zulus and the Boers waged war with various success, but in 1839 the Dutch obtained a decisive victory, and placed Panda, an ally of theirs, and brother of Dingaan, on the Zulu throne.

Owing chiefly to these disturbances, the Governor of the Cape decided to take military possession of the district, and sent there a force under Captain Smith (1842). These troops came into collision with the Dutch Boers, were defeated by them, forced to entrench themselves, and completely blockaded until the arrival of considerable reinforcements under Colonel Cloete. The Boers surrendered, on the 5th July, to Colonel Cloete at Pietermaritzburg. In 1843 the district of Natal 17-12-98 was proclaimed by the Governor of the Cape to be a British Colony. File 74, p. 52.

ALSO PRESENT: ZULU. ^{Zulu reports} Swaziland per John Gama, pp. 12-98. John Gama is of the Giba regt, about two years older than Offy Shepstone; he is therefore about 56 or 57. He was educated at Edendale, Natal.

He can read and write. His chief informants were old Edendale men; also Mpikeleli (deceased) of Endhlilembu, a ^{malo} ^{captain of unit} ^(deceased) ^(deceased); Macungela ^{successor of THE} ^{Gama} ^(deceased), Mawo one of Gama's relations, to whom Gama addressed as 'Baba' & who was an imbongi; Macungela was an old man when Sobuzo came to the throne. Gama learnt ^{latterly} from Mpikeleli ^(see below).

N.P. John began by giving a list of Swazi kings ^{pp. 128} which exceed in number those given by either Shepstone or Miller. (pp. 137). He went on to say that it was during the Tonga king Mtonga's reign that his brother Mswazi (the one beyond Samukedi) came to occupy country along the base of or on the uBombo mountains. The legend is this: Mswazi wanted to ^{HUNT BLACK} ^(CULTIVATED) ^{lions} because he wanted food. Mtonga on the other hand wanted to ^{PROVIDE} ^{for his tribe} ^{them} ^{THE PASSES}. ^{to the} ^{country} ^{of} ^{the} ^{people} ^{he} ^{wanted} ^{to} ^{feed} ^{his} ^{tribe} ⁱⁿ ^{the} ^{country} ^{where} ^{he} ^{had} ^{been} ^{born}.

This was the origin of the separation which was not due to a quarrel. Mswazi wished to fight with other peoples and obtain cattle, some of which were ^{given} ^{to} ^{his} ^{elder} ^{brothers}. Mtonga received these cattle, ^{SLAUGHTERED} ^{before him} ate them. Thus the Swazi kings proper begin with Mswazi, for those ^{before him} are Tonga kings. John says when Swazi proceeded to build Etshiceloeni (near Mahamba) they came from the uBombo through iZikala (^{THE RIVERS}) ^{in old native account} ^{LUGOVUMA} and Pongolo (Pongolo is not referred to). The Makanya people or ^{people} ^{of} ^{the} ^{country} ^{they} ^{were} ⁱⁿ entered the Swazi, it seems, during the first Mswazi's time or during one of the kings immediately following. - Shaka did not ^{TRROUBLE OTHER NGOMANE PEOPLE} ^{ENTER} ^{THE RULE OF} ^{NGOMANE} ^{PEOPLES} ^{and} ^{SHAKE UP ON} ^{THEIR LANDS} ^{WHICH WERE OWNED} ^{BY THEM}. It was Tswide or Tide who did that. The Tongas have for a very long period occupied the land they are at present in. People after people have passed this part of the country from the north on the way to Zululand, Natal, Pondoland etc. whilst Tongas have remained stationary in Tongaland.

the most warmest & most cordial character. The Swazis regarded this as a lasting alliance between Mr. Shepstone and themselves. Sir J. Dashed Mowari for horns, a hunting party went out & killed all kinds of buck before he went back in the two wagons above referred to. ~~He used to be at the council as well as in Swaziland.~~ John Gama cont'd 18.12.98. Gama admits that women are not as respectful towards their husbands or other men as they used to be. This he attributes primarily to the action of Mangateni or Mangangeni, mother of Ludonga, who used to permit or encourage women to come and sit with her in an assembly of men, instead of doing as Lazide, Mswazi's mother, did during that King's minority, viz. to allow no woman to attend a council meeting except the girl who kept her snuff. The general disrespect now observable seems due to this action as well as that of Ndoki Tlubati (madolona filsha)¹² and Habutibeni (Ngwane's mother). The two latter were in the habit & the latter is still in the habit of bringing women into the council. John says he has himself spoken about this to the Swazi authorities, saying that women would go and tell others what was said at Council meetings. ^{The reply was, they would never dream of doing any such thing.} Mr. Shepstone often on several occasions referred to this attitude of the women. John thinks that such action as this has caused women to feel as if they were the equals of men; consequently they do not show the same respect as before. I pressed him as to the cause of Mangangeni acting as she did. He agreed that European influence was clearly felt in the days of Ludonga and it may be that the knowledge that women are protected by Europeans is a factor in the present very unsatisfactory state of affairs. John used to speak to the Indunas about this attitude of women but they always backed out of doing anything. Habutibeni has quite a lot of women ^{in whom} she permits to attend council meetings. Nbandeni strongly resented this attitude of women, so much so that he caused Mangangeni and over thirty of her women to be put to death. ^(mothers of Ludonga) Namisa ka Mhlanga, an old man, was despatched to do this killing off. [See evidence of Cleopas Kanene below.]

Natal, per Julu, 19.12.98. Julu thinks the great thing which causes natives to become Christians is the teaching about the immortality of the soul. A person dies, his "breath - soul" goes somewhere, the body remains & is buried. Where does this soul go to if not to its maker. - A miracle is known as tumlingo, ~~but~~ kindling a fire on top of a hut without its burning is a miracle. People do not attribute miracles to the amadlozi but rather "moelingangi = the Creator". Mlingo is a great incentive to belief. Amadlozi are supposed not to know anything about miracles. Turn to p. 91.

One must therefore draw the inference that European goods are quickly displacing those of native make. For instance instead of the isilulu we find and mbiza we find boxes, instead of depending on sand & soap is used, instead of a piece of old imbiza a piece of zinc incised in the fireplace, instead of izipukhu we have blankets, instead of the old soft iron hoes we have steel ones, matches in place of the fire making by rubbing sticks together, guns ^{really} superseding assegais, the lantern in place of the baga or rush light, newspapers for wrapping up instead of dried leaves, and fifty other displacements by European goods could be named.

Notes on preceding list p. 126. John Gama prepared the list last night on paper after he had given from memory that shown in pencil on p. 128. In drawing up this list on paper he had the use of Miller's and Shepstone's lists v. p. 137, which lists, especially Miller's were given by himself. He remembers giving both Shepstone & Miller information re Kings but what he said to them was not so carefully considered as the list given me, which, as revised again this morning is the very best he can do. He feels that as far as including Sikulamaloyi the list is correct; he has no doubt as far as that but beyond, although he has heard the names all referred to by Swazis, especially when bongaining amadhlizi, yet he is not sure that each name is that of a King or only of some well known prince or man of high standing. In course of time it is quite likely errors crept in and those not really entitled to be included have by the sanction of custom a right to be given a place and it is impossible to discriminate between those who were or were not kings. Gama feels that the list is as complete as it can be as his information was always obtained from the very best sources and men who, then at a great age, died many years ago. Gama came to Swaziland shortly after Mswazi's death but not until Mbandeni came to the throne which was about the time of the Langalibalely rebellion (1873). He was born in Swaziland but ~~had~~ left with his father at the age of 2 or 3 for Natal ^{for his} ~~as a boy~~ being killed or eaten up. Gama thinks Mbopholo, so he is very frequently mentioned by Swazis, should be brought next to Sikulamaloyi. Luwamba, Luvalala and Wawawa come at the very end of the list, whilst Nkulawankosi, the last name ever referred to Swazis, must be taken as the end of the list if indeed it can be included for Kings are not named after that person although ^{by name} Wawawa is sometimes used. Took down these words from Gama "La pa kwa Ngwane iGama lo yice omkulu elidala ali bulawa, lina njalo. Ul'a nja galu' umtswana wo munt'omkulu kona kuyi ukosé nje, ka bigwe abadala ba kona abazalo ba kona, ba zo ka nika lomtswan' ozelut' iGama. A nikhur-ka iGama la o yice inkulu abadala. is umlumbi & umdetshi (woman's word used to me by Queen Regent); umlunga in Swazi means 'mealie' (cob with mealies on I think); ukupuz'utshwala would be ukunat'utshwala, ngi natse, and, in Swazi, tohwala has the plural form amathwala. Kuto is a very common word implying that person speaking can not give (has not) what is asked of him or her. * Ba si pica ngawo la manangananga a yi lite = they cheat us by means of these little black and white marks which ^(really) are clothing, said by Queen M. to me about 4 weeks ago at Zom bade in Zulu's presence. Tshuba, emtshimba, amanti, inkhanti, si (we) is turned into ti. Isicoco is ^{probably} umbodi. Tina si ntima = we are black, said to me by Ngwane.

P. Chief when off to England with Dept¹¹ 21.11.98.

Inqwaruma per Zulu & personal knowledge. Mbikiza speaks the Swazi language, due to residence in Swaziland. Some of his people speak Swazi others Zulu. Sambanas, ~~and~~ Mtshelokwaneo and Mkatwa's ^{people} men are ~~also~~ influenced by Swazi dialect to a certain extent. 21.11.98.

Swaziland per Zulu & self. 22.11.98. The Zulu says inswelaboya, the Swazi, ijabane; heka is golotela = to look at or expect; Zulu, intombi i ngi qomile, S. intombi i ngi ganile; Z. umntu nxa i qomiso intombi i nga m tandi kutiwa u ya i qomisa, & u ya i xoxa, S. u ya i soma; Z. soma, have connection with a girl after she has accepted a man, S. juma; Z. cel'utshwala = S. shinga; Z. cel'uyama, S. ngi comisa.

For derivation of ^{expressive} word guzela see under "amandike" p. 96.

gueuka S. - penduka, Z. Where in Z. we have 'z' we find 't' in S. e.g. Z. amanzi = S. amanti, Z. paza = delay, in S. is puta, for paza = drink (see above), where in Z. q we often find c or both 'c' and 'q', separately of course e.g. gueuka or guguka = Z. guguka, isixatuka-zana in Z. is ucukatana in S. The words neoma or neoka are never heard, only 'tika'.

Bamba lu siba = Z. Bamb'u pape; tico ijara is a soldier (young unmarried man); maki, *make = Z. name. - Ba ti te = Z. Bate. Ngifuna li bantshi, the 'l' often put in before the single 'i' prefix of a noun. 28.11.98.

A ba kwa Ngwane = amaSwazi (Swati); here Ngwane is the name of the King who immediately preceded & was the father of Ndenganya: the word Ngwane, I was assured by Mnkonkoni means nothing. Swazi is different. The people of Zulu Swaziland are said by the Zulus to swata and this may well be the derivation of the name, for Mswazi began to reign I should think not ³⁶ years ago, for his mother Lazide was ^{Queen} Regent for some time; still it would be as well to ascertain carefully if the name Mswazi did not create the verb.

etafeni S. = endhle Z., fola li gwayi S. & bem'ugwayi Z.

~~Tongaland (per Mahungane and Nkomuya. from 8.11.96 to, I think, 10.11.97 or perhaps also early morning of 11.11.97 - see p. 53) Lobola was fixed by Makasane first at 5 izimbedu and 5 amasinda, then about time of umbango between Nozizingili and Makasanya he raised it to 10 of each. Nozizingili promulgated lobola as 15 izimbedu and 10 amasinda. - Izinhlu were possibly brought in by Mangobe - they were the first measure of lobola in then (or them or their) not known (sic). ubuhla came in in Makasane's reign, it is believed that it was owing to a proclamation by him that the length of beads necessary for lobola was fixed. and The king Nozizingili objected to money being paid as lobola, he was in favour of izimbedu but as people desired to use money, the practice became established. To lobola was paid in cattle in Nozizingili's reign but money came in and was used for that purpose. Cattle came in during Zamkili's regency. Jambili advised the people to lobola with 4 head of cattle, the fifth being for killing. Owners of children objected saying that this was insufficient as one beast to kill and one for pibindi to malume of intombi, leaving only 3 to qed' indhla. Then proposed 6 head ie. one for killing, one for malume and ~~for~~ on account of the girl herself; others proposed 10 head. Jambili was thereupon compelled to give way and said as her advice was not taken they must act for themselves. She however thought she was giving them kraals (niki' imizi ie. doing a good thing for them). Jambili gave no instruction in regard to money lobola because her husband had ~~repro~~ brought up the matter before them and failed. - It must be remarked that Jambili was a Swazi girl daughter of lobuza. She was lobola'd with cattle only, of which there were many tens. The reason why Jambili proposed lobola less than ten (in view of the practice in other parts) was because there were so few cattle in the country. At the present day (1897) people lobola either in cattle or money as the father of the girl wishes. - Girls were not~~

Great House of the Amaswazi people to represent to the Lieutenant Governor of Natal that a white man called "Gwenya" has, in conjunction with other white men, occupied a portion of the Amaswazi territory and ask for and express their intention of occupying more. "Gwenya" calls himself an Englishman, but when we ask him if he belongs to the Government of Natal, he says that he does not, and gives us to understand that although he knows that Government and the persons who compose it, he is not amenable to it and will not listen to or obey its directions. The Amaswazi people do not understand how this can be, and they have sent me to complain of their country being taken from them by Englishmen; they ask the Government to interfere in their behalf and to prevent encroachment upon their territory by persons who, although they call themselves Englishmen, behave as if they were not Englishmen. They say they want to build in the Amaswazi territory a large town like Pietermaritzburg, but the people do not wish to have such a place in their country, and they ask the Government of Natal, to whom the Amaswazi consider themselves to belong, to prevent the encroachment.

The Chief of the Amaswazi made before his death an agreement with the Boer Government as to the boundary line between the Amaswazi and the Boer Government (the Trans-Vaal Republic) and by that agreement the line was settled, but these Englishmen disregard that line and violate it on pretence that they have purchased from the Boers. The people therefore and the surviving family of the Chief, have sent me their accredited messengers to represent this source of mischief and misunderstanding, and to pray for that relief which this Government only can give, because the encroachment is too serious to be quietly borne.

Made to me, (signed) J. Shepstone, Secretary for Native Affairs.

Memorandum.

I find that the person called "Gwenya", is Mr. McCorkindale, who was, I believe, former manager of the "Glasgow and South African Company".

Swaziland per John Gama, 18-12-98 (Sunday), July present. About the year 1864 a Swazi ^{FOUND} finding themselves harassed by the Zulus on the one side and the Boers on the other, although they feared the Zulus most, ^{as the messenger} they sent to Sir J. Shepstone in P.M.Burg on their way through Zululand, were interfered with (killed etc) by Zulus who refused them permission to pass through the country, men like Malunge and Mpikeleli strongly advised Mswazi to present Sir J. Shepstone (then Mr.) with a Princess of the Blood (Royal) in order to establish a most intimate connection between Sir J. and themselves, so that he would protect Swaziland, especially on the Zululand side.

It was urged that it made no difference if Mr. S. was a white man; he could accept a girl and if he liked give her to his native Induna. Messengers were accordingly sent to Mr. S. to convey the resolution arrived at by the Nation. They had to go via Majuba or what is now called Charlestown. Mr. Shepstone accepted the girl who was offered and expressed his thanks. He called upon Mpande to send messengers to him and when these men arrived he directed them to inform Mpande of what the Swazis had done. He said he desired that his bridal party should pass through Lululand unmolested by anyone, as the shortest way to Natal from Swaziland was via that country, viz. Sirayos district. He said that the Swazis were his relations now and Mpande was to leave off troubling them and not to send any ~~impis~~ force to raid or harass them in any way. Mpande obeyed these injunctions and the bridal party with cattle and other belongings passed through Lululand and via Sirayos (who had received definite orders from Mpande) to Natal, not only being unmolested by anyone but receiving from everyone the best treatment and hospitality, cattle and so on being killed for them. Tifokati was the name of ~~this~~ Mr. Shepstone's bride. She was accompanied by others as well according to Swazi custom, which other girls also belonged to Mr. S. ~~was the gift as she was~~ of course paid no lobola. On arrival in Natal, Mr. S. gave Tifokati to Ngoza his Induna who had children by her, several of whom are now young men.

Not long after this Mswazi died. Mpande applied to Sir J. S. for permission to go and ^{mount} ~~see~~. Sir J. S. asked what they meant by ^{Going to mount} akakale, what it involved. Did it not mean that Mpande would send an impi to Swaziland ^{that was what I thought} and with the view to fighting with the Swazis and carrying off their cattle? The messenger sent replied in the affirmative, whereupon Mr. S. refused to grant the permission. John Tama says he knows this incident very well indeed. He had ^{reached} ^{the age of puberty} ~~been~~ ^{must have been still} about 16 ~~when~~ ^{at school} when Shepstone ~~was~~ ^{at school}. This would be about the year 1868. Mpande sent a party (an impi) but, although Swazis fled from before it yet it did nothing; it halted & returned to Lululand. Respecting the effect of this incident on Swaziland in respect to lobola see under lobola, although that again should come under this article. Mpande's party ^{participated} ^{in the mounting ceremony} ^{left} ^{at Nobamba (umpakati - oka somhlolo)} on their way to Kulu. It seems Ngoza preferred Sikutana to Tifokati. Mswazi resented this and killed Samukedi and his whole kraal, seized property for his daughter Sikutana's offence. Although Sir J. Shepstone paid no lobola for Tifokati yet two wagon loads of goods (blankets etc) were sent to Swaziland to be bartered away for cattle which then were to be paid over to Mswazi as lobola paid by Ngoza for Tifokati. The goods were accordingly bartered, Mswazi himself purchased some, and the cattle formally handed over. What Sir J. S. gave in the shape of ^{MANY GIFTS} ijimpahlala ^{they were} ejiningi as above referred to was not a lobola but as a present. After that ~~the~~ Tifokati's umgano ^{which were sent as gifts required in Natal but probably not all the time were} was sent to Natal, and all formalities in regard to the marriage properly observed. After this the relations between Swazis and Sir J. S. were of ^(as Mswazi wished to make the transaction of very great importance)

the most warmest & most cordial character. The Swazis regarded this as a lasting alliance between Mr. Shepstone and themselves. Sir J. Dashed Mowari for horns, a hunting party went out & killed all kinds of buck before he went back in the two wagons above referred to. ~~He used to be at the council as well as in Swaziland.~~ John Gama cont'd 18.12.98. Gama admits that women are not as respectful towards their husbands or other men as they used to be. This he attributes primarily to the action of Mangateni or Mangangeni, mother of Ludonga, who used to permit or encourage women to come and sit with her in an assembly of men, instead of doing as Lazide, Mswazi's mother, did during that King's minority, viz. to allow no woman to attend a council meeting except the girl who kept her snuff. The general disrespect now observable seems due to this action as well as that of Ndoki Tlubati (madolona filsha)¹² and Habutibeni (Ngwane's mother). The two latter were in the habit & the latter is still in the habit of bringing women into the council. John says he has himself spoken about this to the Swazi authorities, saying that women would go and tell others what was said at Council meetings. ^{The reply was, they would never dream of doing any such thing.} Mr. Shepstone often on several occasions referred to this attitude of the women. John thinks that such action as this has caused women to feel as if they were the equals of men; consequently they do not show the same respect as before. I pressed him as to the cause of Mangangeni acting as she did. He agreed that European influence was clearly felt in the days of Ludonga and it may be that the knowledge that women are protected by Europeans is a factor in the present very unsatisfactory state of affairs. John used to speak to the Indunas about this attitude of women but they always backed out of doing anything. Habutibeni has quite a lot of women ^{in her} who permits to attend council meetings. Nbandeni strongly resented this attitude of women, so much so that he caused Mangangeni and over thirty of her women to be put to death. ^(mothers of Ludonga) Namisa ka Mhlanga, an old man, was despatched to do this killing off. [See evidence of Cleopas Kanene below.]
