

A black and white photograph showing a close-up of a dark, heavily textured surface, possibly a rock face or a piece of weathered material. The surface is characterized by numerous irregular, interconnected cracks and fissures, creating a complex, fractured pattern. A thin, light-colored pencil is placed horizontally on the left side of the image to provide a sense of scale. In the center of the image, a small white rectangular label with the number '34' is visible. The overall appearance is that of a weathered, possibly mineral or geological, surface. The photograph is framed by a white border.
