Another of the Ngumanga heroes was Nóbanda ka Sogatsase. Of him Socuasha tells the following story:— Complaints were made to Tshaka about this man's extraordinary appetite owing to which they had but little to eat. Tshaka thereupon caused some hides to be laid out on the ground.
On them were emptied a number of amagubas with amasi in them also those which had been set aside with cream in (to make into fat).
Some of these latter ~~were~~ had maggots in them—well all these too were emptied into the hides.
Tshaka now called Nóbanda and told him to 'bamba' (set to). He did so, ^{gugany on his knees, to get at amasi} he ate here, he ate there until he could eat no more. ~~As~~ He got up from the ground (for he had knelt down to get at amasi) with assistance of a stick. He did this with greatest difficulty, ~~for~~ his
