Was at one time Chief in command of Cetywayo's forces, before Umpande's death. Has not more than 500 men, and is poor for his rank. His district lies south of the Mbelebeleni kraal. Cetywayo's favourite brother, and the principal of the Princes who supported him in his struggle with Umbulaswi. Not favourably disposed to Europeans and unpopular with the Zulus. Bryant —

2A 79 Father: Umpande. Age: 45. Residence: Mfemfe- about five miles north west of the Ngoni Mountains. Remarkds: Prindipal brother of King. Has about 6000 men and very rich in cattle. His district lies between the Ngomi Mountains and the Pongola River, and is bounded by that of Mnyamana on the the south and west, by Swaziland on the north and on the east by Masipula. Differs from Cetshwayo as leader of the peace party and is favourable to the English but not the Dutch. Most popular of the Princes being liberal, good tempered, brave and plain spoken. A very large body of the Zulus would follow his lead in any disturbance, and he would possess considerable influence with the Natal Zulus. The European who would have the most influence with him would be Mr Herbert Nunn, who for some years has had the same position as Dunn has had with the King.

"The son wasorigianlly named Marelana , but in conseqence of the dream, the name was changed to Dinuzulu...Cetshwayo's wives all opposed D being appointed to succeed. But Cetshwayo appointed Dabulamzni guardian to Dinuzulu. Opposition arose to Dinuzulu being C's successor, the idea being that Ndabuko should become the regent until Dinuzulu was old enough to take over. Other of C's brothers supported tha plan andeventually plotted with the Boers to shoot Dabulamzni, which they did, at the instigation ofNdabuko, getting a reward for having done so. Dinuzulu then was taken off by Ndabuko."

/Info from the Boundary Commission of 1891 on the situation of poeples in the Ndwandwe district/
/Commissioner and magistrate Gibson agree that country between Bl Umf and Ivuna and line marked x x x x on map never formed part of Z's land before the war. This info was obtianed from Mankulumana Mgamule and Siziba. 'Usuthu ' lived here such as the followers of Umtumbu, Uombe Mgamule Monyama Ziwetu and others.

To the north - east of this tmex chiefly in the vicinty of the seat of the Magistracy and between it and the Mkusana (Palaza?) on their own behalf for such headmen as Mokedama, Umjwapuna, Manyosi, Sayingana or on behl f of their allies like those who have separated from Z like Haiana or Fokoti.

The possession of these areas has been the subject of dispute since 1879 and Cardew shows how it has been handed back and forth.

Journal of the Commissioners p15
The approximate areas claimed by Fokoti to have been occupied before the war ar marked on my map, Claimed tha t this had been under his con rol since the time of Dingane /Mandhlakazi counter with the argument that the whol country belonged to Mapita as thus Z his heir/
Tinsila, head of the Nzuzo laid claim to the area which included Mpande's kraal Dqukazi, maintining they wereindepednet of Mapita, The area he claims to have ruled over before 79 is marked on the map. /Remomber these are approximations.

(Tinsilà present head of Nzuzo)
Haiyana land marked by Fokoti (see map

At the time when Mpande assigned the country to the Nzuzo it was deserted in consequence of the Macongo battle between ~~ambx~~ Dingane and Mpande he ection of the 'Madnhlagazi' which formerly occupied the district was headed by Mkungula and he was killed and people scattered. When Z became chief (79) no Mandlagazi occupied the territory which is observed from the Ndunu hill. he area marked Haiyana on the map was thickly interxmixed with Mnadhlagazi in 79

"My report of July 1887 that Hlomusa was thoroughly loyla to Uisbebu was founded on fact, Hlomusa having persoanlly assured me of his xx attachment to USibebu His subsequent disaffection and the transvfer of his loyalty to Dinuzulu is in keeping with the tactics of certain Zulu heamen some of whom are true belivers in the principles of the Vicar of Bray. Hlomusa believed that the rebellion in 1888 headed by Dinuzulu would pove successful.
As for the reasons given by Hlomusa in his evidenc for his alneation fro Usibdbu I can only sau that if ever there was in instances winch the old maxim audi alteram partem applies this is one.

"The words of Mfutshane and Mlilwana, when they came for a second time to Bishopstowe (Oct.28, 1881).

'When on our way back, as soon as we reached the Tugela, we heard from the white ferry-men that there was trouble in Zululand, between Hmau and theabaQulusi, and between Zibebu and Maduna. We went on and found the two Princes, Madunz and Ziwedu, 'on the hill-side'...women and childrend and all, and taking refuge in the kraals of Kitwatwa, in Hmau's district, and of Mdhlume, (one of only 6huts, the other of 8 or 9 huts, whereas at Maduna's kraal, Kwa'Minya, there were 27). Dinuzulu, Cethswayo's young son, and his wives and other children were at Mnyamana's kraal, Ekushumayeleni, and at Benelwayo's , a man of the Sutu...tribe; and the mother of Cethswayo and Maduna, daughter of Jojo, appointed in the place of their real (deceased) mother Ngqumbazi, together with Mbixabixa, Cethswayo's sister, who is lame at the hip-joint, and has to be carried, were at Empikanisweni, a krall of Mnyamana's.'"

NOTE:—It is with deep regret that we have here to record the death of Usibebu, Chief of the Mandhlagazi Tribe (No. 22), which occurred on the 27th of August, 1904, and subsequent to the compilation of the foregoing brief histories.

By his death, Government loses a most staunch ally, whom it will be very difficult to replace, and one of the most striking characters in the modern history of Zululand is removed from the sphere where his presence has been an important restraining influence for good.
