Bulwer to Derby confidential 11/12/83

Onem of the greatest dangers with which the Zulu country is at this moment threatened arises from the probability of the Government or people of the Transvaal State interfering in its internal disputes if we refuse to do so. /para/ Your Lordship is aware that when Cetywayo was in the Inkanhla Bush we received information which led us to think that he had it in contemplation to take refuge in the Transvaal. There can, be indded, be litted doubt that he did seriously entertain this idea at the time, his object probably being to put hismelf under the protection of the Transvaal, and obtain their assistance in attacking Usibebu, regardless of the consequences that this connexion would afterwards entail upon himself and upon the country. That he did not excape to the Transvaal was due at first to his apprehensions regarding his personal safety, and later, when Usibebu came to the Ibabanango, the idea was necessarily for the time abandoned.

thers is reason to think the Transvaal would not be unwilling to receice Cetywayo, and to make use of him. "hat Mr. Joubert's veiws are were shown in the letter from him which was forwarded by the British Resident at Pretoria to the High Commissioner on the 18th September last. ince Cetywayo has been at Etshowe, there is case to believe hat he has been and still is in communciation with some people in the Transvaal. It is not impossible that boeps of support have been held out to him, and Mr. shorn thinks that he is desirous of escaping to the Transvaal if he can do so.

If he did the whole future of the Zulu country would be wrecked, hopelessly wrecked. he Transvaal would assist him no doubt in overcoming lisbebu, but when that was done the pyment for the assistance given would have to be made. Af first the Zulu country, or what was left of it, would be brought under Transvaal influece and control, but eventually the whole country, we may be sure, would virtually be taken over as a part of the Transvaal State, to the ruin of the Zulu cople.

deal with the situation in Zululand, or else the Transvaal will act and deal with it. If we act we shall act for the good of the Zulu people. hat at least will be our object. If the Transvaal acts, the good of the Zulu people will, I fear, be made of much accout; and a Tranvaal annexation of the country will be as disastorus to the Zulu epople as it will be inj injurious to our interests here.

This is a serious danger that lies before us, and I fully recognise that an escape out of it is not facilitated by the knowledge that in deciding to act our chode of action is a choice between disadvatness. In I have shown the three ways that are open to us out of the dagner, the three ways by which we can hope to deal with the sitation, namely, either by taking the country under British rule, or by extending the Reserve, or by putting Dinazulu in place of his father. These are the only three ways; by which, so far as I can see, the Zulu country, and the interests of the Zulu poeple, and our own interests, can be saved."

Agrees that the State cannot interfere with emgiration or emigrants and believes that the Transvalahas apposed such movements into Zululand BUT_/

"His Honour considers that the persons whose conduct has been complained of, and whose proceedins have occasione trouble and embarrassment to the Natal Government, are bona fide 'emigrants,' that is, persons definetly and entirley leaving Transvaal territory, and resigning altogetehtr theirights and privileges under the Government of this Sate; but, rater, persons who, while pursuing teir own ends in Zululand, agaisnt the will of the rightful possessors of that country, still retain propoerty and personal footing in the Transvaal, beyond which they go, and into which they return, as they find convenient for their purposes, thus practically making the Transvaal territory and border a basis* for operation, intrusive and agressive in their charcater, and likely to lead to confusion and villnecne, and which are opposed to the rights and wishes of the Zulus.

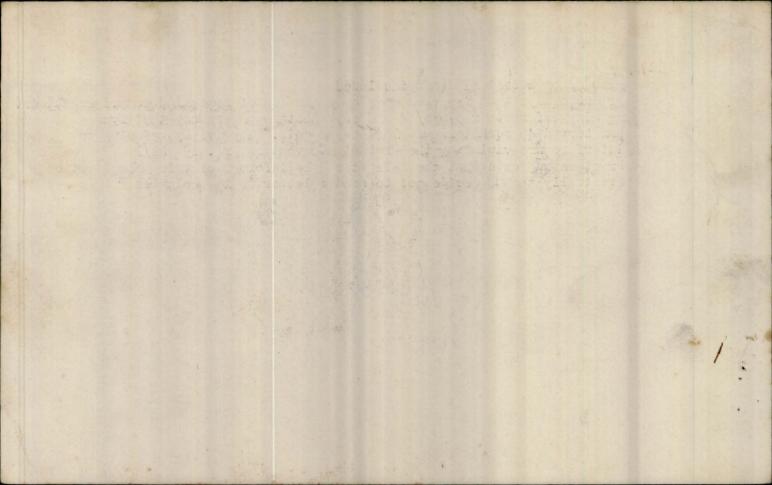

It would, therefore, his Honour submits, seem reasonable, for the mutual interests of the Transvaal and of the Natal Government, and for the queit and safety of the border, that the former should take some stepts to control the adts of pe rsons who, being still burghters of the State, must be held to be amenable to its authority."

In may cases of the kind which have come to my notice the mischevious potency of the powder has been believed to have been imparted to it by some magical porcess, and the powder itself has been innocuous: this may be the case in the present instance; I have not tested it in any way, but on smelling it in the young Zulu's presnece he manifested the greatest terror lest I should harm myself, and said his instructions were lways to wash immediately after touching the powder."

Confidential Mmeorandum.

"On Tuesday the 18th DecUsikihli son on Nongena, a young Zulu of the Regiment, abour 25 years of age, came to my house in Pietermaritzburg with Mr John Shepstone, Acting Secretary for Native Affairs for the Colony of Natal, and Luzindela the hief Induna on duty at the Native Department.

Usikihli made the following statement.

My father Nonena lives in the Zulu country, and is one of the sutu party there; I have working as stable boy for Mr John Shepstone, off and on, ever since the delivery by him on the banks of the Tugela of the Zulu Ultimatum in 1878. When Cetywayo was retored ... I was in Zululand with muxxxxxxx my father in the Reserved territory; when the option was given to remove and live under Cetywayo or remain in the Reserve, my father elelcted to remove, but I determined to remain.

I was present at the meeting at Emtojanenei when the ceremony of Cetywayo's restoration took place. When Sir T Shepstone and the Troops returned to atal I ent on with Cetywayo, and hleged to build his kraals; after a while I returned to my fathers kraal in the Reserve. while there a messneger from C etywayo came to tell me that I was wnted immediatley at the Ulundi; that Cetywayo had epstressed his regret that the son of a man who was sevoted to him, should have been at Ulundi and /did not see him? especially as that son had left Zululand before the war.

I fel atlarmed at this sommons and wished not to go; but my father said go, and I went. I was several days at Ulundi oind daily to the gathering to see the King , and he saw me, but he said nothing. About the third evening I was sent for; I found the King sitting with only one other person, Matyana, the son of Umbokazi, in a hut, I made the thrid in the hut, Cetywayo then addressed me as the son of Nongena, who, he said, was a faithful adherent of his; he went on to say that he nglsih overnment had faithful given him back all his country, but that he could not get possession of what had been given to him; do you see, he said, who it is that prevents my ge tting my rights? It is but one person and that is Mr John Shepstone; but I have no longer anyone upon whom I can rely, on who will take my part; you are the son of my od and faithful servant, and I want you to do me a great service for which you shall be made the riches man in Zululand; the English, he said, never make a man rich, whatever service he may render them, so you need not hpe in them. He then proceeded to talkx tell me that he would have me supplied with poison, which I must put into Mr Johns food or coffee, or in the water of which it was to be made; that I was to be te instrument because he knew that I had been Pr John's servent, and tha I should not be suspected; that a man named Sompula son of Ingula would supply the poson; he it was who poisoned the water of the Itshowe and Ginginnhlovu camps during the war. I objected that as I worked with the horses I should have no opportunity of carrying out the King's Commission. "e pressee me hoever, and I consiented to try. Mr John Phepstone was then in the Reserve territory, and it occurred to me to induce Cetywayo to put off the execution of his wish, until Mr John should have reutned to his own house in Maritzburg, where my opportunities would be asier, as XI should have re entered his serivce. Cetywayo through my suggestion a good one, commended me for it, and said he trusted me to act as my manhood night direct me.

I then left with Sompula the man whose direction, in the administaion of the posion, I was to act, "hen we separated, he to remain, for the present, in fululand, I to come to Natal, he me the 'muti', a dark coloured powder, which I now see, and tol me how to sue it.

I sent on to Mr John Shepstone, who was on the point of leaving the Reserve for Natal, and offered my services to him in my od capacity; he accepted them, and I became again stable boy to Mr Mr Joh hepstone's house in Maritzburg. This was seven or eight months ago, but my heart would never permit me to do what I had undertaken to do, and the possession of the poison made me miseatble; I did not know what to do; I saw danger on all sides. At length the report that Cet wayo had been killed gave me great releif, I thought I had been absolved from the taks I had underaken, and felt happy; but when it became known that he was no dead, I thought that t the spirits had forsaken me.

Meanwhile the man Matxananaxxxxxxx Matyana, who had been present when Cetywayo laid this duty upon me, arrived in Maritzburg with a message to the SNA; he cam to me to aks how my business was progressing? I talk him that I had not yet found a favourable opportunity, but that I expected to be able to do so soon. I saw when he went away that he thought me lukewarm.

then came Iomfula/?/ who had beven me the posion, and who had been appointed to direct me, and asked me how my mission was prospering? I told him an untruth as an excuse, namely, that in crssing a swollen river, the powder had got wet, and that its poisonous propoerties must have been destroyed, because I had administered it, and it had produced no effect; he then give me another supply (about half a thimble full) equal to the first, which, he said, he had brought with becasue they had heard of no effect having been produced by me, and because, as it was reported that Mr John Skepkx wason his way to the reserve, it as supposed that he might meet him and administer it there: Somfula came on the pretext of seeking for work, but I would not allow him to remian on Mr John's premises, on the plea that Mr John would be very angry if he found any stragners harboured there.

Somfula ataid* in Maritzburg howerver for a long time, and me whenever I ent out to dut grass for the horses. He continually urged me to do what I had undertaken to do; he said I might do it by slow degrees, putting into Mr John's food a small pich and waiting for three days to see the effect. I made all sorts of excuses some true, some not; want of opportunity, or Mr John's absence from home. One day I said to him, but what of the family? of Mr John's wife and the children, what if they all get posioned? He replied, that is no business of yours: you are to put Mr John out of the way, no matter who does with him. he English are a stupid people, they know not how to divine offeenders, and think nothing of sudded deaths: Sobantu, the Bishop of Natal, died suddenly, it is beyond doubt that they killed him, and they know it, but they say nothing about it; you will not be suspected, and it will be supposed that other white men killed Mr John.

this continual pressure became unbearable to me, and I felt that I must bring it to and end somehow; I wished to ask Mr John, but I feared the consequences; I did not know what to do, until it occured to me that I might be forgiven, if only on the ground that I had saved life by giving timely arming of a plot to take it away.

But it was necessary to get rid of my direction, so I prepared his mind for failure and discovery by telling him that, as I could not find it in my heart to estroy the mother and children, I had, to make sure, gone into the eating room t put the stuff into the vessel which, I knew, Mr John would use that I was found in the room, where I had no business to be, and that I felt sure that my motive had been supsected.

I made up my mind to tell Mr John All about it, so I asked him to let me speak to him privately, when I related to him all that I have told now, and gave up to him the packet of poison which I now see in your possession, and which was intended to cause his de th.

I absented myself a couple of days from my work; I sent a message to Somfula to tell him that I had been arrested; but next day I fell in with him, and found that he had not recieved my message; I told him of the message that I had sent him; that I had been arrested and that the matter was still under consider tion; hehe became agitated, trembled, and said "Then I had better go away at once." I said yes, the sooner you go the better, and went off immediately for Zululand.

better, and went off immediately for Zululand.

After listining to the above statement I asked Usikihli if what he had told me was reaaly true, and would he swear to it? He replied Did ever a man tell such a story of himself if it were not true? It is truth and I can swear to it.

I sasked him how he could consent to accept such a perilous commission? He replied, I did what I could to excuse myself, but if after finding out what the commission was, I had refused to accept it, I should not have lived long. No Zulu dares decline to carry out any order whatever it may be; He may make it miscarry as I have done; but decline would mean death to him.

the youn man then said he wished to be allowed to suggest great caution; that he knew that a great deal of dependence was, just now, being placed upon the expedient of pos oning; that Mr sborn, Mr ynn, John Dunn, and Luzindela were all marked out as victims; but great stress was ladi upon Mr John Shepstone being sacrificed first,; that if they commenced withxxxxxx the others Mr John might become too careful to be caught, and as he as the Chief offender, the great object was to mkae away with him first.

Every man, said the young Zulu, who receives such a commission as I have, will not do as I have done. 20/12/83 T Shepstone signed.

thus the extetion of the Reserve to the Bl Umfolosi would include half his people but it was thought that on extentison Mnaymaman and his people would come south. Now from 'sb's info it would seem as if this is not so. I do not yet the all that passed between Mnyamana and Osb but

"the anser, so far as it goes, shows that Umnymmana is willing to acquiesce in the extension of the Reserve Territory, and willing therefore to accept the authority of the Reserve Territory, if that authority is extneded far enought to include him and all his people, but that he is unwilling to leave his district and to come into the Reserve if it is not sufficiently extended to include him and all his people; and the question is what course, in the latter case, he will take.

I full recongnise the importance of Umymana's acquiescence or support in any arrangment to be made in Zululand, for he is a man of considerable ability and has great weight in the Zulu country. Tut it may be found. on other accounts to make an arrangment that will exactly suit his views." /Has desire that "mau should be excluded is out of the question /"It is not out of the question to consider his contention that the Reserve should be extended across the Black Umfolosi so as to include his territory. that is a legitmate wish on his part, because he is naturally unwilling to leave that portion of the country where he and half his tribe have loved, and which poassesses such a natural stronglhold and place of refuge as the Ngome forest. "ut there are difficulties in the way of this course. It would, I think, be inexpedient to go across the /Bl Umfolosi just for Mnaymana and would be fogical that take all the country under Cet. Hmau and omkele as well if we do cross the river. The objections to this are i there would not be the chr clearly defined line the Bl Umfolosi gives ii It is better that H is under Z than hs 2ii / "That sibebu will probably look for some extension of his authority in the country wherein he has shown his possession of so much power.

"Out chocke, it seems to me, lies between the extension of the Reserve to the Balck Umfolosi, or the extension of it over all the country that was palced under Cetywayo. Whichever course we take we shall be exposed to incoveniences; but of the two the former seems to me on the whole the most advisable.

he whole question is as embarmassing as it well can be. If we leave the country to itself it will be a prev to anarchy and disorder. we say we are prepared to recognise Cetywayo's son Dinuzulu as Cetywayo's successor, ak he and the Usutu party will, farxasxissa neverthelss, be unable to hold their won, and he struggle that has now been goin on for so long will continue, to the misery and destoruction of the people. If we say that we are prepared to recoggise sibebu as the ruler of the country the powerful Usutu party will assuredly not acquiesce in his rule, and the conflict will be carried on until the stronger hand has subdued the weaker. If we take the country under our authority we shall undoubtedly offer thereby the best guarantee for peace and order, but we dannot expect at once to secure peace and immunity from disorder. exposed as the atta arrangment will be to the intrigues of the usutu leaders and to their efforts to support the claims they have put forwars on behalf of Dinuzulu."

/A peition on behlaf of Klaas Louw_/ Minutes /Referred to Osb /

"Mr Klaas Louw established his store between the white Umfolosi xxxxx the and Inhlazatshe about five years ago with consent of the appointed chief, the late Umfanawehlela, within whose territory the store was placed. The chief notifed to me at the time that he had consented to the extablishment of the store but that he gave Mr Louw no right to land or any fixed tenure, which by the terms of his appoint, ent as Chief he could not grant. Cet contined the authorization but now the store had been included in one of the Beors farms and he has been given notice to quit. Klaas lous is a Hllader and he will probaly place his case in the hands to the Dutch Consul

"The real object of the Boers, however, in obtaining possession of Uhmau's person and in getting him under their control is, in my opinioh, not so much for the sake of the cattle or the money, as because it is of importance to them to hold him as a check upon the Usutus in the not imporbable event of a serious disagreement arising between them and the Usutus."

/Reports the follwing message sent by Hmau to Hlubi by Mbiza, Mbange, and Ulugahu / "1, TheBoers from the Holbane and the Mkuzi, have forced me to surrender, and have palced me in one of my own kraals under the supervision of one John Uis* the a Boer captain, and one Mawaqa, a Native Induna, To wave my life, I have had to give the Boers, one thousand and sity head of cattle, and £800...I was sentneed to death by Mnyamana, and Congrad Meyer the Boer Chief.

I am told I am not to acknowledge the British Government again, but the Boer Government only in furuture, and that I am for the futurue to Konza to Dinizulu.

I have paid all that has been deman ed from me, in the hopes that the British will get me out of the Boer hands - most of my people ar now working for the Boers who have caputred us, and they are ready at a moments notice, to reise and free themsevles sho ld ehp come from any quarter. The Boers are going to attack Hlubi. they are camped round the base of the Hlobane in laagers and built no forts and the Boers say if the British interfere they will be treated to another Majuba Hopes the British Government will release him.
