Barnes Politics in a changing Society

Chapter One The Long March

1. Sources

2. The Nguni backgroundp5/ " In the eighteenth century the Nguni were grouped into a large number of small chiefdoms each containing a dominant lineage segment to which the chief belonged. Each chiefdom contained segments of other lineages, and most lineages had segments in a number of chiefdoms, one segment being dominant in its chiefdom. Lineages were exogamous, their members were graded in terms of primogeniture and the ranking of wives, and as a result of quarrels segments transferred their allegiance from one chief to another or even founded new chiefdoms. Most residential settlements were small, containing only the agnatic descendants of a living man, with their wives and children, and were divided into three sections or 'houses', led by the great, right- and left- hand wives of the polygamous head of the settlement. There were also larger homesteads containing the dwellings of chiefs and other members of the dominant lineage as well as those of many genealogically unrelated dependants. The chiefs were assisted by his gaitic kinsmen and by the heads of non-chiefly lineage segments and by other unrelated men whom he placed as lieutenants, or indunas, in charge of districts or responsible for specific administrative, judicial or military tasks. For fighting and hunting the men of the chiefdom were organized in divisions, each attached to a royal homestead." / Also an organisation of youths in age sets. / / At the turn of the century, with the emergence of large kingdoms, each containing many chiefdoms under the leadership of a king, the age-sets began to be organized on a national basis. Each age- set constituted a regiment in the national army, had its barracks at a royal homestead, and was led by a nominee of the king, usually a prince or chief. Other royal homesteads, called heads, were in charge of princes and were the foci of allegiance of groups of chiefdoms within the kingdom. " / Every man owed allegiance to several places. To his agnatic lineage within the chiefdom / " and in particular to that segment of the lineage within the chiefdom to which he belonged. Local matters, questions arising over land and cattle, and quarrels between neighbours, were settled by discussion between agnates or by reference to the lieutenant appointed by the chief to look after the district." / He was a member of a division of the chiefdom and the chiefdom against other chiefdoms and looked to his chief for support as his chief looked to him. He belonged to a regiment in so far as the nation was concerned and he a member of a head where his regiment would be grouped with other regiments. He might change his chiefdom but not his regiment or head.

3 Foundations of the state.

4 The residential system "The Nguni men and women who made up the core of Zwangendaba's following were grouped together in agnatic lineages and in age sets. The heads of the various distinct lineages under Zwangendaba, or at least some of them, became known as regional governors (footnote Mulumuzana alumuzana...) and their lineages became segments in what we shall term the Ngoni residential system.

5 Under Swangendaba's leadership

1. The first of these is the fact that the the world is not a perfect sphere, but is flattened at the poles. This is due to the centrifugal force of the earth's rotation.
The second is the fact that the earth's surface is not perfectly smooth, but is covered with mountains, valleys, and other irregularities. These are due to the action of the earth's internal forces.
The third is the fact that the earth's atmosphere is not perfectly uniform, but is composed of different layers. These layers are due to the different temperatures at different heights above the surface.
The fourth is the fact that the earth's magnetic field is not perfectly uniform, but is composed of different regions. These regions are due to the different currents of electricity in the earth's interior.
The fifth is the fact that the earth's rotation is not perfectly uniform, but is subject to small variations. These variations are due to the different masses of the earth's interior.

Printed for Private circulation in Capewton 1923.

/Glanced for Zulu references and on page 157 under the heading John Williams Buchanan ~~was~~ there is an account of his visit to Zululand at the time of the Cetshwayo's coronation in order to take photographs. He travelled with D. nn. Dunn and Buchanan traveeld in an American buggy with four horses, Cethswayo walked and Dabulamanzi rode. (this is prably the origin of the photos of the chief with his followers which is often called a photo of Dabulamanzi.) Arrived at Mambongweni, now ^{called} Ulundi. Took a few distance photos of the coraonation but C refused to photograph.
